Re: LeRoy Bates
17 November 1971

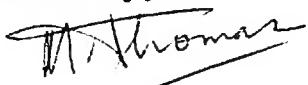

Dear Doctor Green:

Your patient LeRoy Bates, age seventeen, was seen by me in follow-up regarding his seizure problem. He reports that he has had no spells of any kind in the interval, making the last seizure the one that occurred last December. Neurologic system review was negative. He has had no injuries, major illnesses, etc.. His father is not sure but thinks there may possibly have been some brief blinking episodes, too brief for anyone to be certain about.

Neurologic examination was negative.

I have suggested continuing his Dilantin 200 mgs. morning and evening, and his Zarontin two capsules each morning. I have suggested if any questionable blinking episodes should recur under the fathers observation it would be well to augment the Zarontin, more or less according to the time of day that it is observed, adding 250 mgs. at noon if they should be seen in the afternoon, for example. He appears to be getting along well and unless his father observes something more definitive, I would think he should be eligible for his drivers license when he has a year of freedom from seizures behind him this December.

Sincerely,

MADISON H. THOMAS, M.D.
